Sebastian's Delight (pumpkin)

On crisp fall days we think back to why we started making dog cookies. It was all for Sebastian, our chocolate lab. The need for an all natural treat and his love of pumpkin lead us to this most delightful flavor. Not only does Sebastian love the flavor, it soothes his rumbling tummy as well.

Nelson's Choice (apple parmesan)

As the summer ends we all enjoy the afternoons spent apple picking on cool sunny days, even Nelson our little chocolate Pomeranian. We've taken the old tradition of eating apples with cheese and added a twist, baking sweet apples and rich parmesan cheese into his cookies.

Pepper's Preference (broccoli & carrot)

As the vegetables sprout from our garden, it's not the bunnies that we worry about, it's the carrots. Our miniature Schnauzer pepper loves her veggies. That's why we created these wholesome delicacies chock full of carrots and broccoli. Pepper has rarely been so pleased.

Cody's Crunchies (peanut butter)

When we first adopted our Australian shepherd Cody, he wouldn't touch normal treats. All he seemed to want was peanut butter cereal, but we wanted him to eat something healthier. That's why we first created these crunchy peanut butter cookies. He's never looked back.

Murdock's Munchies (blueberry)

On warm summer days Murdock roams the fields around our house nosing through the grass and the bushes for his favorite treats. Murdock is a berry hound, plain and simple. Be they blueberries, strawberries or blackberries, they have a special place in his heart and his belly.

Coco's Carob Cookies (carob)

When Coco found out that chocolate was bad for dogs she was heartbroken. But that pouty look disappeared as soon as she smelled the carob cookies we'd baked for her. This cookie has a flavor quite similar to chocolate, yet with none of negative effects for dogs.

Winston's Wafers (banana & peanut butter)

Some dogs, like our friend Winston the Jack Russell terrier, can't handle eating wheat, but that shouldn't keep him from enjoying a deliciously flavorful dog cookie. That's why we took the wholesome richness of bananas and added just a dash of peanut butter for his cookies.
